Part A — Key Ideas (Recap)

- The Self decides how to fulfil its own needs as well as the needs of the Body.
- The transaction between the Self and the Body is only in the form of information: sensation (from the Body to the Self) and instruction (from the Self to the Body).
- I am; my body is; I want to live; my body is used as an instrument. I want to live with continuous happiness; physical facility is required for nurturing, protection and right utilisation of the body.
- Program of the Self = to understand harmony and to live in harmony, at all levels of being (individual, family, society, nature/existence), for continuous happiness. Production, protection and right utilisation of physical facility is a part of this program (less than one-fourth).
- The Self is the Seer (the one that sees / understands — the senses are only instruments; one can also 'see' within), the Doer (the one that decides what to do; the body is used to express the decision) and the Enjoyer / Experiencer (the one that feels happiness or unhappiness).
- FAQ points: the Self reads even ordinary sensations by choice; in extreme pain too it can respond rather than react. Mind is a part of the Self (imagination — desire, thought, expectation); the Brain is a part of the Body (it coordinates the body's activities). A continuous activity is of the Self; an activity that gets tired is of the Body. Memory is stored in the Self.

This section is a recap of key ideas; no blanks to fill. The student should read and understand these points.

Part B — In-Class Activity

Activity 1 — Seer, Doer or Enjoyer?

For each situation, identify which capacity of the Self is acting, and note whether the body is used as an instrument.

Situation	Seer / Doer / Enjoyer	Is the Body used as instrument?
Concluding that the object in your hand is a pen	Seer	Yes
Deciding what to do and what not to do	Doer	Yes
Feeling enthused or depressed	Enjoyer	Yes
'Seeing' within that you are getting angry	Seer	No

Activity 2 — Information transaction

Between the Self and the Body, label the two forms of information and the direction of each.

- From Body to Self: sensation (this is called information from the body to the self)
- From Self to Body: instruction (this is called information from the self to the body)
- Therefore the Body is an instrument of the Self, and the Self is central to human existence.

Part C — Long-Answer Questions

Q1. "The transaction between the Self and the Body is only in the form of information." Explain, naming the two forms. [5]

The transaction between the Self and the Body is only in the form of information because there is no material exchange — only signals. The two forms are: (1) sensation, which flows from the Body to the Self (e.g., feeling pain or temperature), and (2) instruction, which flows from the Self to the Body (e.g., telling the hand to move). The Self reads sensations and sends instructions, so the Body acts as an instrument receiving and transmitting information.

Q2. Explain the Self as Seer, Doer and Enjoyer, giving one example of each from the deck. [5]

The Self as Seer is the capacity to observe or witness without action — e.g., seeing that you are getting angry. The Self as Doer is the capacity to decide and initiate action — e.g., deciding to pick up a pen. The Self as Enjoyer is the capacity to feel the outcome of actions — e.g., feeling happy after completing a task. All three capacities operate through the Body as an instrument.

Q3. State the program of the Self. Why is production, protection and right utilisation of physical facility less than one-fourth of the program? [5]

The program of the Self is to continuously ensure harmony at all four levels: within oneself, with other human beings, with the rest of nature, and with the entire existence. Production, protection and right utilisation of physical facility is less than one-fourth of the program because it only addresses the material/body level, while the Self's program also includes relationships, societal harmony, and existential fulfilment — which are far larger in scope and importance.

Q4. In the case of extreme pain, the deck says the Self reads the sensation "by choice" and can respond rather than react. Reflect on one instance and write whether you responded or reacted. [5]

Once I accidentally touched a hot pan. Initially I jerked my hand away — that was a reaction. But then I consciously chose to observe the pain without panic, breathe slowly, and run cold water over it. That was a response: I read the sensation by choice, did not let it overwhelm me, and took a deliberate action. So in that instance, I first reacted, then shifted to responding.

Self-Reflection (Take-Home)

• Pick one activity of the Self (continuous, e.g. thinking) and one of the Body (which gets tired) from your day. (FAQ, Slide 27)

• Where do desire, thought and expectation take place — in the mind (part of the Self) or in the brain (part of the Body)? (FAQ, Slide 25)

• Activity of the Self: thinking about my study plan — this is continuous and does not tire the Self. Activity of the Body: walking to class — this gets tired after a long distance.

• Desire, thought and expectation take place in the mind, which is part of the Self, not in the brain (which is part of the Body). The brain is only an instrument that the Self uses to process and express these.
