Part A — Key Ideas (Recap)

• Affection = the feeling of being related to the other (accepting the other as one's relative). Opposition and jealousy are an indication of the absence of affection.

• Care = the responsibility and commitment for nurturing and protecting the Body of one's relative. Guidance = the responsibility and commitment for ensuring right understanding and right feeling in the Self of one's relative. Care and guidance are a natural outcome of affection.

• Reverence = the feeling of acceptance for excellence. Working for excellence and competing are not the same: in excellence I help to bring the other up to my level, while in competition I hinder the other from reaching my level. Glory = the feeling for those who have made effort for excellence. Gratitude = the feeling for those who have made effort for my excellence.

• Trust and Respect are for all; Reverence for those who have achieved excellence; Glory for those who have made effort for excellence; Gratitude for those who have made effort for my excellence.

• Love (the complete value) = the feeling of being related to all (one → many → all). It begins with affection (being related to one or many) and expands to being related to every unit in existence. It is expressed as kindness, beneficence and compassion. A common misunderstanding is to confuse excitement / lust (from sensation and preconditioning) for love — such infatuation has no continuity.

• Justice = the recognition, fulfilment and evaluation of human-human relationship, leading to mutual happiness. Its five elements are: unconditionally accepting the relationship; ensuring the naturally acceptable feeling in oneself and sharing it; living with responsibility unconditionally; making effort for mutual development; and verifying that the right feeling has reached the other. Justice is to be ensured from the family to the world family (undivided society).

This is a recap of key ideas; no blanks to fill. The student should understand and internalize these concepts.

Part B — In-Class Activity

Activity 1: Write the feeling (Affection, Care, Guidance, Reverence, Glory, Gratitude, Love) against each meaning.

Meaning	Feeling
Acceptance of the other as one's relative	Affection
Responsibility for nurturing and protecting the body of one's relative	Care
Responsibility for ensuring right understanding and right feeling in the self of one's relative	Guidance
Acceptance for excellence	Reverence
Feeling for those who made effort for excellence	Glory
Feeling for those who made effort for my excellence	Gratitude
The feeling of being related to all	Love

Activity 2: Mark each statement as belonging to Excellence or Competition.

Statement	Excellence / Competition
I help to bring the other up to my level	Excellence
I hinder the other from reaching my level	Competition
Nurtures others; helps the other come to his level	Excellence

Statement	Excellence / Competition
Effort to accentuate the difference, to dominate, manipulate, exploit	Competition
Absolute (definite completion point)	Excellence

Activity 3: Mark each statement as Love or Infatuation.

Statement	Love / Infatuation
A feeling in the Self, based on relating to the other unconditionally; continuity is possible	Love
Based on getting sensation / feeling from the other; continuity is not possible	Infatuation
The feeling of being related to all, responsible towards all	Love
Excitement, attraction, lust	Infatuation

Part C — Long-Answer Questions

Q1. Define affection, care and guidance, and explain how care and guidance are outcomes of affection. [5]

Affection is the feeling of acceptance of the other as one's relative. Care is the responsibility for nurturing and protecting the body of one's relative. Guidance is the responsibility for ensuring right understanding and right feeling in the self of one's relative. Care and guidance are outcomes of affection because when we accept someone as our own, we naturally feel responsible for their physical well-being (care) and for their right understanding and feeling (guidance).

Q2. Distinguish working for excellence from competition, and define reverence, glory and gratitude. [5]

Working for excellence means nurturing others and helping them come up to one's own level, with a definite completion point; it is absolute and based on right understanding. Competition, on the other hand, involves hindering others from reaching one's level, accentuating differences, and trying to dominate, manipulate, or exploit others. Reverence is the feeling of acceptance for excellence. Glory is the feeling for those who made effort for excellence. Gratitude is the feeling for those who made effort for my excellence.

Q3. What is love? Distinguish it from infatuation / lust. [5]

Love is the feeling of being related to all, being responsible towards all, and it is based on unconditional relating in the Self; therefore, continuity is possible. Infatuation or lust is based on getting sensation or feeling from the other, such as excitement, attraction, or lust; it is temporary and continuity is not possible. Love is a state of the Self, while infatuation is dependent on external stimuli and the body.

Q4. Define justice and state its five elements. [5]

Justice is the recognition of values in relationships, their fulfillment, evaluation, and mutual happiness in the family and society. The five elements of justice are: 1) Recognition of values in relationships, 2) Fulfillment of these values, 3) Evaluation of the fulfillment, 4) Mutual happiness in the family, and 5) Mutual prosperity in the society.

Q5. Make a list of people for whom you have a feeling of gratitude, and check whether the feeling is continuous or comes and goes. [5]

People for whom I have gratitude: my parents, my teachers, my friends who helped me in difficult times, and my siblings. The feeling of gratitude towards my parents and teachers is continuous because I recognize their consistent effort for my excellence. Towards friends, it sometimes comes and goes depending on the situation, but I am working on making it continuous by understanding their role in my life.

Self-Reflection (Take-Home)

- Are you working for excellence, or for being special, or for domination? (Slide 22)
    - Where would you draw the boundary between people who are related to you and people who are not related to you? (Slide 22)

    I am working for excellence, because I aim to improve myself and also help others improve, without trying to dominate or be special. I draw the boundary between related and unrelated people based on my natural acceptance: I feel related to all human beings, and I am working to expand this feeling to all, as love is the feeling of being related to all.
