Part A — Key Ideas (Recap)

• Happiness is a feedback that we have understood and live in harmony (at all four levels); unhappiness is a feedback that we have not (at one or more levels). Our role is to make the effort to understand and live in harmony → continuous happiness.

- Human beings have two things to do: (1) to understand co-existence – Knowledge (jnana) and Resolution / feeling-thought of co-existence (samadhan); (2) to live in co-existence – with human beings (Undivided Society) and in nature (Universal Human Order).
- Deluded Self: imagination on the basis of sensation and preconditioning; it stays at the level of B2 (desire, thought, expectation) without being awakened to B1.
- Pure Self: imagination on the basis of realisation, understanding and contemplation; B1 (realisation of co-existence, understanding of harmony) guides the lower activities B2.
- Realisation of co-existence within expresses itself outside as Mutual Happiness, Mutual Prosperity and Fulfilment of the Human Goal – i.e. Undivided Human Society and Universal Human Order (the human tradition).
- Holistic Development = Transformation: physical facility alone cannot ensure transformation, however much it increases. Holistic development is the ensuring of all three – right understanding in the self, right relationship with human beings, and physical facility with the rest of nature → mutual happiness and mutual prosperity.
- Role of the human being: realise the co-existence and ensure the universal human order – societal transformation through personal transformation.
- Universal Human Order – dynamics: the human tradition is a cycle of Human Education → Human Conduct → Universal Human Order → Human Constitution. Human Education is the entry point.

Deluded Self: imagination on the basis of sensation and preconditioning; it stays at the level of B2 (desire, thought, expectation) without being awakened to B1.

Part B — In-Class Activity

Activity 1: Complete the comparison of the two states of the Self.

	Deluded Self	Pure Self
Basis of imagination	Sensation & preconditioning	Realisation & understanding
Level that is active	B2 (desire, thought, expectation)	B1 (realisation/understanding)
Outcome	Unhappiness, deprivation	Realisation → love → living with compassion

Activity 2: Which three components are present in human consciousness, and what is the result? Fill the table.

Component / Result	Animal Consciousness	Human Consciousness
Right understanding (in self)	Missing	Present
Relationship (with human beings)	Missing	Present
Physical facility (with rest of nature)	Exploitation → Deprivation	Mutual fulfilment
Result	Unhappiness, Deprivation	Happiness, Prosperity, Continuity

Activity 3: Name the four parts of the cycle in order, starting from the entry point.

Step	Part of the cycle	What it ensures
Entry point	Right understanding (in the self)	Competence to live with definite human conduct
2	Relationship (with human beings)	Continuity of mutual happiness & prosperity
3	Physical facility (with rest of nature)	The society in which the human goal is realised
4	Universal human order	Nature of a society living in mutual fulfilment

Part C — Long-Answer Questions

1. Distinguish the Deluded Self from the Pure Self. In your answer cover the basis of imagination, the level that is active, and the outcome. (5 marks)

The Deluded Self imagines based on sensation and preconditioning (B2), so the active level is B2 (desire, thought, expectation), and the outcome is unhappiness and deprivation. The Pure Self imagines based on realisation and understanding (B1), so the active level is B1 (realisation/understanding), and the outcome is realisation leading to love and living with compassion.

2. "Physical facility alone cannot ensure transformation." Explain holistic development as the ensuring of all three components. (5 marks)

Holistic development requires ensuring all three components: right understanding in the self, relationship with human beings, and physical facility with the rest of nature. Physical facility alone leads to exploitation and deprivation, as seen in animal consciousness. Only when right understanding and relationship are also present does transformation occur, resulting in mutual happiness, prosperity, and continuity.

3. Explain how realisation of co-existence within a human being expresses itself outside as the Universal Human Order. (5 marks)

When a human being realises co-existence within themselves (harmony at the level of self, body, and their relationship), this realisation naturally expresses as right understanding. This leads to fulfilling relationships with other human beings, which in turn ensures proper use of physical facilities with the rest of nature. Collectively, this cycle produces a society where the human goal is realised, forming the Universal Human Order — a society living in mutual fulfilment.

4. Recall one recent decision you made. Was it guided more by realisation / understanding (B1) or by sensation / preconditioning (B2)? Explain with the example. (5 marks)

I recently decided to skip a social outing to finish an assignment. This was guided more by realisation/understanding (B1) because I recognised that completing the work was necessary for my long-term learning and responsibility, rather than acting on the immediate desire to have fun (B2). The decision brought a sense of satisfaction and reduced stress later.

Self-Reflection (Take-Home)

• Recall a recent unhappiness. At which of the four levels (self, family, society, nature/existence) was the disharmony?

• In your day, where do you mostly act from B2 (sensation/preconditioning) rather than B1 (realisation/understanding)?

• Which one of the three – right understanding, relationship, physical facility – do you give the least attention to?

• A recent unhappiness was a disagreement with a friend; the disharmony was at the family/relationship level.

• In my day, I mostly act from B2 when I check social media impulsively instead of studying — driven by sensation rather than understanding.

• I give the least attention to right understanding; I often focus on physical facility (comfort, possessions) and relationships, but rarely pause to reflect on my own understanding of values.
